New Suzuki Vitara Equipped with Rába Seat Components

Rába extended the scope of its products supplied to Suzuki by means of a newly acquired order. The recently signed agreement brings the company's Components Unit a contract worth HUF 2 billion annually for the whole life-cycle of the new Suzuki Vitara.

Rába's business unit based in Mór, Hungary has been a steady and reliable partner of the Japanese car maker, having supplied components to several Suzuki models for years. The company was awarded a six-year contract starting this March to sew Suzuki Vitara seat covers and headrests, press seat pans, weld seat frames and manufacture hinges and seat wire frames. The supplier agreement secures the manufacturing rights of Rába's Components Unit for the whole life-cycle of the new Vitara.

The serial production of the new Vitara commenced on 5 March this year, thus bringing the total number of Suzuki models fitted out with the products of Rába's Components Unit to three.

The recently concluded agreement confirms Rába's strategic role in supplying components to the products of Suzuki.
